butterfieldI enjoy the quality of the subjects presented. I didn't know there is a whole city underneath Rome. This is a book written by well known authors, journalists therefore the quality is high, brief, informative and generally, good reading.

This newly designed collection of adventures in Italy takes the reader to a land of magical extremes — of ancient verities and modern vitality. Sculptors, olive harvesters, art historians, and cooks people these tales, and their stories are as evocative as opera. The book simmers with romance, culture — and the best food on earth. Authors include Tim Parks, Patricia Hampl, Mary Taylor Simeti, Luigi Barzini, Gary Paul Nabhan, and many others. “Travel writing at its glorious best.” — Chicago Tribune

"Travelers' Tales is a valuable addition to any pre-departure reading list."
