Niya C. Sisk : Vignettes of Provence: Visual travel essays before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Vignettes of Provence: Visual travel essays:

This book is about the art of "hello" when we travel to a different culture. Through the non-tourist's lens the author offers an intimate, refreshing view of travel stories with a theatrical flair. The triad of photographs, graphic prose and paintings express the humor and traditions of the French people. As well as the dogs, charming bakers, poetic toll booth workers, wood-smoked gourmet pizza chef's roadside at midnight, and more. Enjoy this unique take on the day to day affairs inside the small villages in the south of France.

About the AuthorNiya writes from a visual point of view. Drawn to humor and psychological themes her work pulls out the charm and essence of the tragic delight of being fully alive. She is the author of "Bragging Bantering Bawling" story collection and "Po'Bird: An wingless bird determined to fly" illustrated children's book. She is the founding editor of Curly Red Stories online literary journal. She received her MFA from Vermont College of Fine Arts and a certificate in screenwriting from UCLA School of Theater, Film and Television.
